

A STRIKE ON BUFORD

The Manila Times of January 20, which reached here on the Manchuria yesterday, has the following concerning the transport Buford, due here on the 17th inst.:

A strike among the members of the crew of the transport Buford was narrowly averted at Honolulu. Arriving at the Hawaiian port December 22, the transport laid over until the 26 and was at the dock on Christmas day, when the crew asked to be permitted to go ashore. This was not granted because of the quarantine restrictions.

The men of every department on the ship joined in a general "reclama" and attempted to push past the guards at the gangway. A fight ensued and the soldiers of the 3rd cavalry were ordered under arms, told to load their carbines and, as a persuasive measure, ordered to shoot the first man that stepped over the gangway. As the strikers did not value a few hours in Honolulu at the cost of their lives, they contented themselves with refusing to work. It was finally arranged to give them passes, a few at a time.

This is said to be the last trip of the Buford. It is thought that she may be sent to Alaska with troops upon her return to San Francisco.

The Buford sails for San Francisco, via Mariveles and Nagasaki, January 25.

Among those who will take passage on her will be Colonel Clem, chief quartermaster of the division, who was relieved from his duties as such at noon today by Major Daniel E. McCarthy, chief quartermaster of the department of Luzon, who will act until the arrival of Colonel Patton, February 15.

The following is the list of first-class passengers:

TEXAN FIRE SUBDUED.

All day yesterday water was poured into Number Three hold of the can, the hold in which the first signs of fire had been found. The work was mainly to cool down the heated pipes and the steaming piles of slaked lime and charred shingles and other material to be cleaned out for the infection of the underwriters. Even the two streams of water were being poured into the hold men were below the debris into the big tanks. The dangerous work as the tanks were twenty-five feet deep in steam-water saturated with the lime. The men were working over these on a plank as a slip into the tanks would have been fatal.

The fire in Number Two hold was put out by yesterday evening's work, and the hatch was removed. When the greater part of the lime had been removed the lumber stored beside it was out into flames as the air was admitted to it. Two streams of water at once turned on and the blaze was extinguished. This last fire was the only appreciable damage to the ship so far uncovered, a small chip resulting.

With the large gang of men at working out the hold it is expected the underwriters can begin their section today.

ESTABLISHES MISSION

The result will be good beyond calculation. A man in the position of Bishop Hamilton has influence upon which absolutely no limit can be placed.

Bishop Hamilton came to Honolulu, primarily, to prepare his church organization here for a step upward in its polity. It has occupied, heretofore, a position relatively the same as the position of a territory in the Union. It was his purpose to prepare the church for statehood. That is, that was his purpose, and that has been accomplished with results to be manifested hereafter.

ALOHA TO HAWAII.

The Bishop, however, had still another purpose in coming to Hawaii. He wanted to see that the Koreans in the Methodist fold were put in a position where they could reap the full benefit of their affiliation with that body. He has now done that.

In addition to all this, the Bishop and Mrs. Hamilton have opened here a branch of the Susanna Wesley Home, which will do a work that is bound to be far-reaching in its effects. The work of the care of little children, and of the rescue of fallen women is recognized as one that must have far-reaching results for good. The Home that Bishop Hamilton virtually consecrated on King street, and that Mrs. Hamilton was most largely instrumental in starting, representing a present investment of several thousands of dollars and a future investment still larger, will remain as a monument to the bishop's visit which will add glory to his fame with each passing year.

From on board the Manchuria, outward bound Bishop Hamilton sent the following farewell message yesterday to his friends in Honolulu:

"You may say for me, to all my Honolulu friends Aloha. For the many kindnesses I have received I am truly grateful; for the numerous courtesies extended from all sides I am appreciative, and personally and on behalf of the church I desire you to thank those who have made my visit on these beautiful islands such a thoroughly pleasant one. Of Hawaii and of her people I shall have the kindest and most pleasant recollections. It is to be hoped that the Bishop's duties may send him this way again—and soon."

CALVE COMING

Ash-ton Stevens wrote a description of Madame Calve's appearance in San Francisco the same year (1901) which was in part as follows:

"Calve's Carmen, they say, is never two times alike."

"She took the powder puff from her bosom last night in the first act and, after brushing her face and hands with it, threw it impishly in the face of one of the cigarette girls."

"That was the only conspicuous departure from Calve's first performance that came to my notice. Her personation was the same as before in conception and elocution. It was scrupulously legitimate. It was consistent and cumulative. It was knit with Duse fineness. It was of a strong, nervous energy, and volatile and voluptuous. The singing was perfect to the acting. The singing came out of the acting as spontaneously as perfume comes out of a flower. So far as a performance could be true and equal to its inspiration, this one of Calve's was true and equal. It attempted nothing that it did not execute with the fleetest and surest of suggestive art."

"And this second Carmen of Calve's created no greater furor than the first. The audience admired it as an exquisitely finished presentment. But the audience did not shout and hug itself and turn flippers in the aisles."

"There was no call for such a demonstration. Calve's Carmen is not that kind of a girl. It scorns the vocal tour de force. In it there is not one ounce of prima donna. And while suggestively voluptuous, it is never palpatingly passionate. Grace, not sensuousness, is its keynote."
